Missile Hits Target 5,000 Miles Away

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An advanced Atlas missile, designed for greater range and heavier payload, smacked a target 5,000 miles away Friday night and revived Air Force hopes that the new weapon can be operational this year.

Driven by the most powerful set of U.S. rocket engines ever flown, the 85-foot intercontinental range missile sped to an intended target north of the South Atlantic island of Ascension. The Air Force reported all flight objectives were met in the 25-minute trip.

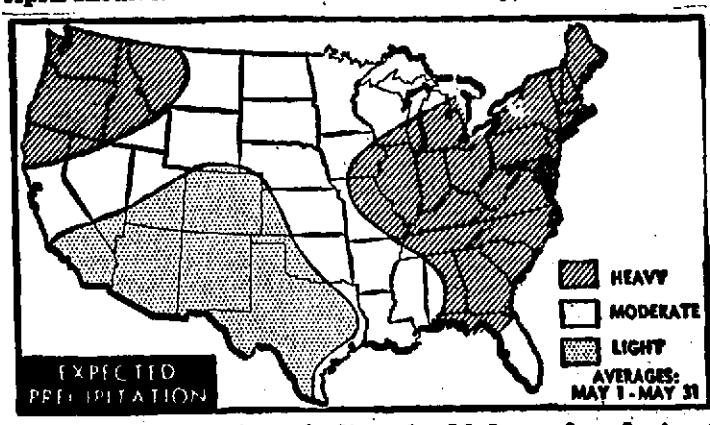

A 30-pound data capsule ejected from the nose cone and was recovered by the range vessel Sword Knot less than an hour after it parachuted into the sea. The capsule was packed with instruments to record the performance of the cone, especially how it withstood the searing 13,000-degree re-entry heat.

The success was only the second in seven firings of the new, more powerful Atlas E model. Most of the previous failures in the series were traced to a faulty hydraulics system. Engineers have concentrated on correcting the trouble and officials said after the latest flight that the problem seems solved.

Three big engines with total thrust of 400,000 pounds propel the E Atlas. This compares with 360,000 pounds generated by the operational D model, 18 of which are deployed at bases in California, Wyoming and Nebraska.

Folks in northern half of the nation who shivered through April shouldn't look for much relief in May, forecast shows.

The flowers that bloom in May should do so, for plenty of rain is indicated, except in southwest portion of country.

The Mothers of Today Seem Very Happy Over Appliances That Cut Down House Work

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Since tomorrow is Mother's Day we asked some mothers in our town our Inquiring Reporter question for this month. It seemed appropriate to ask modern women "What present-day household convenience do you value most highly?" The most general answers of "gas" and "electricity" would cover the statements made, but each one questioned named specific items. Let's see what they were.

MRS. HARRY SHIVER: "My dishwasher is something I prize highly and it would have to be my answer. Of all household chores the one I dislike the most is washing dishes. I've always regarded it in the 'necessary evil' category until I got a dishwasher."

MRS. PERRY MOSES: "Because of the saving in both time and money my home freezer is my most valuable convenience. It enables me to prepare food ahead of time for company, whether expected or not, and I can save money by buying in quantity when I see a 'good buy.'"

MRS. BILL TOLLESON: "A refrigerator is most prized by me. Not only for convenience but also for the sake of my family's health. Keeping a quantity of food fresh is a necessity. The cooking range is a close second in importance to me."

MRS. LLOYD GUERIN: "An automatic dryer is first in importance to me. With a large family there is a lot of washing and ironing of clothes, and time is at a minimum. For that reason a dryer is invaluable in good weather as well as bad, as it alleviates the necessity for ironing in some cases."

MRS. GEORGE WRIGHT: "My answer in three little words is 'washing machine.' I don't know what I'd do without my automatic washer. Children cause it to be increasingly valuable to a mother. A dryer is almost equal in importance."

MRS. JOHN HARTSFIELD: "The modern refrigerator and stove are tied for my most valuable present-day convenience. I can remember when a housewife had neither one of them like we have today. My radio is a convenient pleasure I enjoy and must include in my answer."

MRS. JEWEL V. MOORE, JR.: "Like most mothers of small children washing clothes is a daily necessity, so my automatic washer and dryer are of greatest importance to me. In fact, I wouldn't exchange them for a Cadillac."

Modern mothers are fortunate to live in an age of great advancement, but they still have the old-fashioned belief in placing the family's welfare first. The conveniences named enable them to do that in an easier way. What better combination could be found than a modern household presided over by an old-fashioned heart!

Would Bar Additions to Hospital

BLITHEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A group of western Mississippi County residents today filed suit in Chancery Court seeking to prevent construction of additions to county hospital units in Blitheville and Osceola.

The suit was filed by officers and directors of the Buffalo Island Betterment Association, composed principally of residents of Leadville and Manila.

Defendants are County Judge A. A. Banks, other county officials and the hospital's Board of Governors.

The suit asks orders to restrain county officials from a planned $600,000 hospital expansion program.

It asks specifically that county officials be prevented from spending $70,000 accumulated mostly from a one-mile hospital maintenance and operation tax and $30,000 to be raised by the tax in each of the next two years.

Hospital governors planned to use the tax-raised $130,000 plus federal Hill-Burton aid to finance the construction.

The association has been working for some time to get a hospital unit built in the western part of the county. Its request for such a hospital was turned down by the Board of Governors.

The suit contends the tax, voted in 1950, can be used only for maintenance and operation and not for construction.

Federal aid has been approved and only federal approval of final hospital plans is needed before construction can begin.

Banks said he would have no comment on the action until he could study the suit.

Life Protection Against Measles

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A vaccine to give lifelong protection against seven-day measles has proved highly successful in tests, a Harvard Medical School pediatrician said today.

Dr. Samuel L. Katz said the vaccine had been tried on 4,000 children over the last 2½ years with great success.

In part of the study, he said, 84 children, intimately exposed to the disease 2 to 10 months after receiving one shot of the vaccine, did not contract the disease.

In a similar unvaccinated group, 70 to 100 per cent contracted measles, he said.

Dr. Katz addressed a pediatrics session of the 155th annual convention of the Medical Society of New York.

Weather

ARKANSAS: Fair to partly cloudy and continued warm Saturday and Sunday night. Chance of scattered thunder showers extreme west portion Saturday night. Sunday partly cloudy to cloudy with scattered thundershowers.

Call for General Strike in Algeria

ALGIERS (AP) — European extremists today spread word calling for a general strike in Algeria Saturday—anniversary of a coup d'etat in 1958—and the government countered with orders for troops to shoot to maintain order.

French authorities, alarmed by the rising tension in Moslem and European quarters, appealed to the populace to spare the city a disaster.

Informants said European extremists plan to set fire to the Casbah, attack Moslems and Moslems "hounding" areas in order to provoke Moslem rioting and thus compromise the government's Algerian policies.

On the surface, all was calm today.

Necessity of Wire Tapping Is Related

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department official today urged Congress to legalize telephone wiretapping by federal and state police agencies and to permit the use of wiretap evidence in criminal trials.

But, Herbert J. Miller, head of the department's criminal division, said such authority should be accompanied by strict safeguards against invasion of privacy.

Miller urged the subcommittee to separate from wiretap legislation the problem of controlling the use of other electronic eavesdropping devices. He said his department is studying this problem now and will come up with some proposals for separate legislation.

Miller said the present system is "intolerable." He said federal law enforcement agencies now tap wires but are not allowed to use the evidence in courts.

He said state laws authorizing wiretapping in criminal investigations have been clouded by a series of Supreme Court decisions.

He said the Constitution itself allows search of private homes for evidence and there is no reason to give greater assurance of privacy to telephone trunk lines.

"It is a strange anomaly which allows spies and professional criminals to profit from science by carrying on espionage and racketeering through conversations which would be impossible without modern communications, while it forbids the government to obtain and use evidence of those same conversations to run down the spies and criminals to bring them to justice," Miller said.

Asks Disaster Area for State

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus today asked that 40 Arkansas counties be declared major disaster areas in the wake of floods and tornadoes which ravaged the state last weekend.

In a letter to President Kennedy, Faubus asked the $1.5 million federal funds be allocated to help repair damage to public property.

Department Store Sales Show Dip

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reports that department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve district fell 12 per cent the week ended May 6th compared to the similar week of 1960.

The biggest drop was registered in the Little Rock area, 14 per cent. Memphis slumped 13 per cent. St. Louis was down 12 per cent. Louisville declined eight per cent and sales in seven smaller district cities dipped nine per cent.

Sales in the district for the four weeks ending May 6th were also down 12 per cent, the bank reported.

Sales to date was two per cent below those of last year.

Fate Against a Young Hitchhiker

WALLS, Miss. (AP) — Fate substituted a young hitchhiker for a millionaire on a plunge to death in a flaming plane here Thursday night.

Killed in the crash were: L. A. Maddox, about 50, chief pilot for a Memphis business firm, and the hitchhiker, tentatively identified as E. A. Atkins, about 25, of Gadsden, Ala.

Atkins took the seat vacated by Wallace E. Johnson, Memphis construction man and president of Holiday Inns of America, who left the plane on a spur of the moment decision in Hot Springs, Ark.

In serious condition at a hospital in Memphis, some 30 miles north of here, were Roland Maddox, 24, and Joseph D. Hunt, 45, both of Memphis.

The twin-engine Beechcraft came down in a plowed field three miles south of here.

Roland Maddox was a personal aide to Johnson. Hunt was head of U-Finish Homes Inc. L. A. Maddox was a pilot employed by Hunt's firm, which is affiliated with Holiday Inns.

The four Memphis men flew to the Walls airport from Memphis Thursday afternoon in a Holiday Inns plane, then took the Beechcraft up for a demonstration flight.

During the flight, they landed at Pine Bluff, Ark., where Johnson telephoned his wife at their Hot Springs home and learned she was not feeling well.

"I decided 15 minutes before we left Pine Bluff to stop off and stay overnight with her," he said.

"When I got off the plane at Hot Springs I forgot my handbag. The plane was about to take off but this young man ran out, flagged it down and got my bag."

"When he came back he introduced himself and said he was Cook from Gadsden. He said he was headed for Memphis and asked, 'Could I go in that plane?' I said he could and he ran out and flagged it down again."

On arrival back at the Walls airfield, the men discovered that the Memphis plane had been locked in a hangar and no one had a key. So they decided to fly the Beechcraft to Memphis. It crashed soon after takeoff.

Hunt said he got out of the crumpled plane and helped Roland Maddox get free before flames swept the cabin. The plane exploded a few minutes later.

Couple Slain Near Bald Knob

BALD KNOB, Ark. (AP) — A man and his wife were murdered in their home near Russell early today and State Police broadcast an alert for a white truck carrying two teen-aged youths.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Talley were shot to death, a Bald Knob funeral home reported.

State Police and White County officers went to the scene, a mile south of the small White County town, to investigate. Other details were not immediately available.

Distance to Venus Shorter

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet radio studies of the planet Venus show the average distance between the earth and the sun is shorter than previously estimated, the Russians were told today — maybe 27,000 miles shorter.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said this distance, called the astronomical unit, was established at 92,812,797 miles—give or take a few thousand miles.

Standard Western reference works round off the figures. The World Almanac says the average distance is 92.9 million miles. The Encyclopedia Britannica puts the mean value at about 93 million.

Graduation Speaker

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Highway Department says five new bridges will be put into service this summer and fall. They are the Mississippi River bridge at Helena, the Freeway Bridge at Little Rock, the Higdon and Edgemont bridges at Greers Ferry Dam and the Red River bridge on Highway 41 near Foreman.

Testimony on Airline Service

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A radio announcer and a bank official were among witnesses testifying for Ozark Air Lines Thursday in the rehearing of the Kansas-Oklahoma air service case by a Civil Aeronautics Board examiner.

The rehearing was brought about as result of a protest by Ozark to a CAB order allowing American Airlines to terminate its service to Joplin and Springfield and awarding the service to Central Airlines.

J. J. Skattery, a radio announcer who commutes between Chicago and Springfield, said in written testimony he preferred Ozark F27 one-plane service from Springfield to Chicago over American's Convair service on the same route.

Skattery said the F27 is air conditioned while the Convair has a forced air system and that the F27 is faster and has a more convenient schedule.

F. Phillips Giltner, executive vice president of the City National Bank and Trust Co. of Kansas City, testified the bank arranged a loan with Ozark of $2,118,996 in 1959 for the purchase of three F27 planes.

Giltner said the bank didn't consider the possibility of the loss by Ozark of the St. Louis-Springfield-Joplin route.

Benton S. Gabbert, St. Louis broker, said the firm of Newhard, Cook and Company, with nine other firms, underwrote Ozark's offering of 132,944 shares of common stock in 1959.

"If this reopened proceeding should result in a decision similar to the board's original order (which gave Ozark's route to Central) it would have a decidedly adverse effect on the entire local service air industry, and... I believe that under such circumstances public confidence in Ozark's stock would be irreparably injured," Gabbert testified.

The St. Louis County supervisor, James H. McNary, said Ozark employs more than 700 persons in the county with an annual payroll of $3.6 million. He said such a payroll loss "would be harmful to our community."

A. P. Kaufmann, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, said the chamber definitely "support Ozark's petition to extend its service from Joplin to Tulsa and to supply service from St. Louis to Ft. Leonard Wood."

The Ozark witnesses were allowed to testify out of turn. Central, which presented three of its six witnesses Thursday, stepped aside to let Ozark put on four witnesses after it was explained this was the only day they would be available.

A recess until Tuesday is planned following scheduled completion of the economic phase of the hearing today.

The rehearing is to determine which line, Central or Ozark, is to provide service to Springfield and Joplin. In its original decision the CAB granted the route to Central after American applied for permission to abandon service.

No Agreement Between Rusk and Gromyko

GENEVA (AP) — U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met today but failed to solve their dispute over how Laos should be represented in the international conference on the future of the Southeast Asian kingdom.

The issue of Laotian representation kept the conference from starting on schedule Friday. In his first try at personal diplomacy with the Soviets, Rusk conferred with Gromyko in a Soviet hillside mansion to try to end the dispute.

Rusk told newsmen after his meeting that the United States would not accept the Soviet demand for full and equal status for the Communist-led Pathet Lao at the conference table.

"This represents an injection of a new idea by the Soviet Union," Rusk said. "This was not the basis on which we were invited to the conference."

Rusk and Gromyko were together at the tree-shaded Soviet mission for 70 minutes. The American decided to call on the Soviet foreign minister to explore ways of breaking the deadlock, a move encouraged by other Western leaders.

Meanwhile five leaders of the Western-backed Laotian government reached Rome on their way to Geneva as the delegation from Vientiane. They said their part in the stalled meeting would depend on a complete and continued cease-fire in Laos. Pathet Lao and neutralist delegations, the other two factions involved, already are at Geneva.

After the conference in the Soviet Embassy, Gromyko told newsmen: "We discussed questions of opening the conference without going into details. We reached no conclusion."

Rusk said "No progress has been made yet" in breaking the deadlock.

The American secretary of state said he would now have to consult other delegations "as to where we go from here."

Rusk stressed that the United States delegation is ready to take its place at the conference table on 10 minutes' notice once the representation issue is settled.

Start of the conference was postponed Friday when Rusk insisted that only the Western-backed Laotian government and the self-styled neutralists of ex-Premier Souvanna Phouma be seated as full-fledged delegations.

The Soviets demanded equal status for the pro-Communist Pathet Lao delegation.

Rusk refused to join the talks unless the three-nation control commission in Laos confirmed a cease-fire existed in the Buddhist kingdom.

The cease-fire report came, but the dispute on how to seat the triple Laotian delegations immediately cropped up.

The West recognizes Prince Boun Oum's government in Vientiane. The Communist nations consider Souvanna Phouma as still the premier. No one recognizes the rebel Pathet Lao as either a government or a political party.

New Law to Have Teeth, Senator Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said today he won't delay long in introducing a bill "with teeth in it" to outlaw strikes at defense installations.

McClellan told the Senate Thursday "the republic is doomed, and cannot exist as we know it," if Congress and the government won't crack down labor troubles which have harassed missile bases.

He heads the Senate Investigations Subcommittee which has just suspended hearings at which witnesses said the man-in-space program has been thrown back six months by strikes, deliberate work slowdowns and lack of decision by the military.

McClellan had indicated his bill would provide stern penalties for unions which sanction strikes at defense installations, and against workers who stage unauthorized strikes or concerted slowdowns, blacklisting of workers, and loss of legal standing and tax deductions for their unions would be among the penalties.

In his speech the senator said the subcommittee has found "damnable... appalling... gouging tactics" were used by missile base workers, particularly at Cape Canaveral, Fla., and Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. He said the unions have inflated labor costs at missile bases by millions of dollars.

He said missile subcontractors and the military services also must share blame for what happened. But mainly he blamed the unions, accusing them of putting greed ahead of the country's welfare in the space flight-missile race with Russia.

Confirms Ownership of Stock

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold F. Linder, president of the U.S. Export-Import Bank, confirmed today that he owns stock in two companies doing business with an Argentine government agency which received an Export-Import Bank credit.

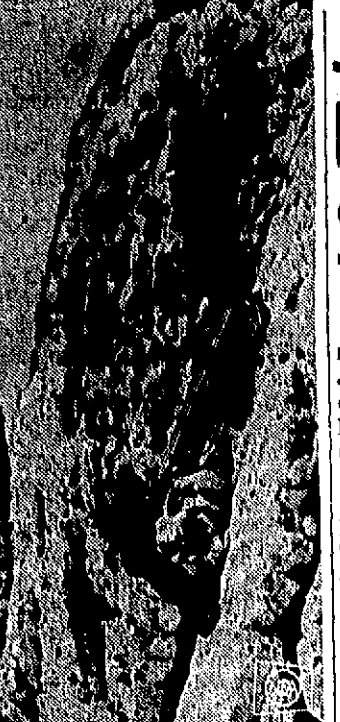

But he emphatically denied that any conflict of interest was involved in the credit, and said he had had no knowledge of it.

The Chicago Tribune said today Linder holds stock in three firms which have an oil exploration contract with Y.P.F., an Argentine government agency which runs the oil industry there.

Y.P.F. received a $1.2-million credit from the Export-Import Bank and the Chase Manhattan Bank on April 11 for the purchase of $1.5 million in oil and water separation and oil metering equipment.

Linder, by telephone from Princeton, N.J., said he does hold stock in L. R. Development Co., which is doing oil exploratory work for another U.S. company, Loeb Rhodes & Co. which has a contract with Y.P.F.; and in Meeres, Inc., which holds some stock in L. R. Development Co.

"But I don't see how, by any stretch of the imagination, this could be construed as a conflict of interest," he said.

Johnson Tour Designed to Stop the Reds

By SPENCER DAVIS
MANILA (AP) — In a confident mood, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson arrived today on the second leg of his barnstorming Far East tour to stem the Communist tide in Southeast Asia.

Johnson lunched with President Carlos P. Garcia in Malacanang Palace after lending a touch of Texas informality to the moon-encircled ride from International Airport.

Time and again he stopped his car to shake hands with every Filipino within reach. Despite a sudden rain, several hundred thousands turned out to welcome him.

Johnson flew from South Vietnam where he pledged the United States would help that Southeast Asian country militarily and economically against the threat of Communism.

Johnson has had hardly any sleep since reaching Saigon to start his six-nation fence-mending tour. It seemed to show on his face at the airport welcome. But he shook off his fatigue to delight Filipinos with his friendliness during the motorcade.

The airport ceremony reflected a mood of grim awareness of threats to the anti-Communist nations in this part of the world.

Philippine Foreign Secretary Felisberto Serrano stated the problem bluntly in his welcome remarks. He said Johnson's trip is "under the shadow of a gloom that distressing developments have cast across the horizon of Southeast Asia." The reference clearly was to Communist-threatened Laos and Viet Nam.

Johnson replied that indeed these are dark days for the free world, much like the early days of World War II. But he declared "as long as there is a Philippines and an America we are not going to permit freedom to wither away."

At the luncheon conference, with the two leaders were Serrano, an outspoken critic of the course of U.S. foreign policy in this area, and U.S. Ambassador John D. Hickerson.

Serrano and Garcia were expected to tell Johnson they have no faith in the 14-nation Geneva conference as a solution in Laos and they fear the only possible result of the meeting will be eventual takeover there.

Phony Credit Rating Rigged by Carpenter

PATCHOGUE, N.Y. (AP) — A Long Island carpenter rigged up a phony credit rating of $687,988 and went on a buying binge, police report.

He was heavily in debt and trying desperately to stall off bill collectors, police explained, and he figured that no one would press a man so rich for payment of back bills.

The carpenter never tried to get delivery of any of the luxuries he ordered. Police listed some of them as arrangements with a travel agency for two round-the-world trips for the man, his wife and three children for a total of $70,000; six expensive automobiles, and two speedboats costing $15,000 each.

Word of the free-spending rich man got around, and three business men in the area approached him for loans totaling $475,000.

Police said he went to the Suffolk County Federal Savings & Loan Association a year ago and applied for a small loan. While in the office, he snatched a letterhead of the association. On it he wrote a credit letter attesting that he had $687,988 on deposit with the association, and he displayed the letter in ordering the cars and boats and trips.

The carpenter, Attilio Santoro, 47, of Shoreham, N.Y., was arrested Thursday. He pleaded guilty in Town Court to a charge of disorderly conduct and was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail. It was noted that his manipulations did not bring him any actual financial returns.

Manslaughter Cited in N.O. Case

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A 12-man jury Thursday night returned verdicts of manslaughter against former Patrolman N. I. Habighorst, 25, and Donald Glowacki, 23, a cook, in the death of W. Ray Scheuring managing director of the New Orleans Municipal Auditorium and formerly West Point Military Academy athletic director.

The state had asked for murder conviction and the death penalty. The manslaughter verdict carries a penalty of from one to 21 years.

Judge J. Bernard Cocke deferred sentencing.

Glowacki a passenger with Habighorst never testified. The defense rested after Habighorst told the court he was fighting for his own life when a gun discharged and killed Scheuring.

The shooting took place on an elevated expressway March 10. Habighorst, who was off duty and in plain clothes, contended he stopped Scheuring's car because of a traffic violation.

Habighorst began struggling with A. J. Stahl, who was in Scheuring's car. The prosecution said it was an attempted armed robbery. Habighorst testified he was afraid he would be thrown off the expressway but that he and Stahl kept struggling after a revolver went off.

The fellow who shakes your hand may be glad to see you, and then again he may just be winding his watch.

Now Is Time to Spray Elm Trees

Spray elm tree beetles now to kill first generation larvae or worms and you protect your trees for the rest of the year, reports County Agent Calvin J. Caldwell.

Overwintering adult beetles are now moving to elm trees to lay their eggs, so early spraying can do the most effective job, the agent points out.

There are three or four generations of beetles in a year and damage is very severe if they are allowed to grow unmolested through the summer.

To recognize these leaf stripers you should know that: Elm leaf beetle adults are 3/4 inch long, and are tan and brown striped in color. Beetles lay eggs in rows or clusters on the underside of the leaves. These eggs are yellow to orange in color. The young larvae hatch from the eggs and feed in a group on the leaf surface near the egg cluster. As they grow they move to new areas on the tree and consume large portions of the leaves, leaving only the network of veins. As they mature the larvae move to the trunk of the tree and down to the soil. They pupate on the lower tree trunk and in the soil before changing to adults.

Control is best obtained by making a spray application about the time leaves have reached full growth. If this spray is not made, then 3 to 4 applications will be necessary to protect trees from second to fourth generations.

DDT gives excellent control when a good job of spraying is done. It should be used at the rate of 2 quarts of 25 percent DDT emulsifiable concentrate to 100 gallons of water. Two pounds of 50 percent DDT wettable powder may also be used in 100 gallons of water, Mr. Caldwell advises.

Seems Eager to Break Up Marriages

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The Jill St. John-Lance Reventlow marriage has passed the one-year mark against all odds-makers, the orange-tressed actress says.

"I don't believe that stuff about Hollywood being the same as any other town," she commented.

"Marriages are shorter and sadder here, and I can see one reason why. Everyone seems so eager to break up a marriage."

"I firmly believe that columnists have revolving files that they bring out periodically. Jill and Lance ought to be fighting by now," they figure, "so let's run an item about it."

And do they fight?

"Certainly," she replied. "We fight like cats and dogs. But that doesn't mean we're going to get a divorce. And we never fight in public, so nobody has any grounds for making rumors about us."

The fights can be on any subject. "Trouble is, Lance is so darned logical, so he's hard to argue with," she added. "Now I'm using the same technique, and we end up glaring at each other."

One factor has contributed to their normalcy: Lance has given up sports car racing.

"He says I'm responsible, but I didn't really pressure him," Jill remarked. "He came to the decision himself, after watching a number of races last summer. In one of them, four drivers were killed. He realized as a husband he shouldn't take such risks."

"He still builds the cars and tests them. There isn't much danger when you're the only driver on the track."

What is life like for this pair of young marrieds? Sailing their yacht, flying their plane, skiing in Sun Valley, surfing in Honolulu. Their idyll was interrupted for three months while she made a film in England. She leaves this week for "Tender is the Night" in Monaco.

W.M.U. Circle 3 Meets with Mrs. Burkette

Mrs. W. L. Burkette was hostess to Circle 3, W.M.U. of the First Baptist Church at her home on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Charles Willmore, circle chairman, gave the opening prayer and the devotional. Mrs. Willmore concluded the study on "The Dreamer Cometh." Mrs. A. R. Underwood and Mrs. Al Plyler conducted the business session and Mrs. Plyler offered the closing prayer.

A dessert course was served to seven members and a guest. In observance of Mother's Day, each plate was decorated with a rose.

Lynne Nelson Celebrates Birthday

David Gordon, Jim DeLamar, Catherine DeLamar, Allen Lee, Linda Oates, Doug Guthrie, Debbie Bolls, Linda Brackman, Stephen Murry, Mike Wingfield, Margie Wolf and Glendon Martin were guests when Dr. and Mrs. N. R. Nelson entertained for a party at the community center on Monday afternoon for their son, Lynn, to celebrate his seventh birthday.

Colored balloons centered the gift table.

After games were played the guests were served punch, ice cream and the white birthday cake decorated in yellow and green from a table covered with a birthday cloth. Favors were balloons and rubber balls.

Mrs. Nelson was assisted by

Young Democrats Are in Session

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Some 300 youthful students of politics were here today for the annual convention of the Young Democrat Clubs of Arkansas.

One of the main topics of discussion during the two-day meeting will be reduction of the maximum age limit from 40 to 35.

Featured speaker will be Rep. Neal Smith, 38, of Iowa, former president of the Young Democrat Clubs of America.

CHAPTER XIII

Mrs. Daney was next, and I hated it. It was almost 7:30 when I knocked on her door, hoping that she was awake. She was. The door opened and she stood there in a smart print dress.

"Good morning, James," she said calmly. "You're up early."

"Yes, I have had news," she said.

A slight frown creased her forehead. "Oh?"

I stepped inside and she closed the door. I knew that Mrs. Daney's quarters were a suite and not just a bedroom. We stood now in a sort of small reception room. Through an archway I saw a larger room, carpeted and tastefully furnished. Mrs. Daney led me into this room and said, "Is it about Maxwell?"

I took a deep breath. "Laura Reynolds is dead. She was shot early this morning."

"Thank God," she said. "How did it happen?"

I merely told her that I had been awakened by what sounded like a shot and had found Laura Reynolds dead on the beach, and that Cecil had summoned the police.

She said, "It could have been an outsider, a stranger, prowling about."

"Perhaps," I said. "but I don't think so—not with the phone wires cut. The police will want to question everyone here."

"Naturally," she sighed and drew on the cigarette "Poor Maxwell. That woman had him completely bewitched. But it's for the best and he'll get over it." She sighed again. "I dislike the publicity, but I suppose there's no help for that."

"I'm afraid not," I said.

She gave me a wan smile. "Thank you, James. I'm glad that you're here. Will you watch for Maxwell's arrival and tell him as gently as possible?"

"I'll tell him," I said.

"Thank you. Would you also please tell Cecil to cancel all the ph-arrangements?"

"I'm sure that Cecil will attend to that without being told."

"Yes, I suppose so. Who is the officer in charge?"

"A Sergeant Griffiths. State police. The county sheriff was not available."

"Please tell the sergeant that I will be down in a few minutes and that he can expect my full cooperation."

I reported to Sergeant Griffiths that everyone, with the possible exception of Julius Stockmaster, would be on deck. Griffiths was seated at the table in the study. Corporal Leeds, holding a stenographer's notebook, sat at one side.

"Thanks, Bennett," the sergeant said. "Will you bring them in one at a time?"

"In any particular order?"

He consulted a list I had given him. "I suppose Mrs. Daney should be first, since this is her house. How did she take the news?"

"She said, 'Thank God,'" Griffiths raised his brows. "Bring her in."

I went out and down the completed hall to the drawing room at the far end and peeked in. Mrs. Daney was not there, but Sandy, Dixie McQueen and William Darnody were present. Also present was Julius Stockmaster, stretched out in a deep chair, eyes closed. Apparently his faithful deaf-mute secretary had fetched him in from the terrace. Dixie McQueen, looking pale and scared, sat on a divan beside Sandy. William Darnody, neat in his dark blue suit, white shirt and a light blue silk tie, stood by the buffet eating a piece of toast. I wiggled some fingers at Sandy and she winked.

I returned to the hall and saw Mrs. Daney descending the stairs. When she reached the bottom step I said, "Sergeant Griffiths would like to talk to you first. He's in the study."

"Very well, James. Would you ask Florine to bring me some coffee?"

"Certainly."

I returned to the archway, caught Florine's eye and she came out to the hall.

Mrs. Daney would like some coffee in the study."

"I'd better get her some juice, too. She just likes juice and coffee in the morning!" Her voice was soft with just a trace of a drawl. Cecil was sitting at a table in a corner, a phone wedged between his chin and shoulder, checking a list with a pencil. He cocked an eyebrow at me and spoke into the phone. "That's right. The party has been canceled. Send a bill to Mr. Daney." He depressed the number bar, began to dial another number and said to me, "That was the caterer. Starting on the guest list now." He finished dialing, checked a name on the list and said, "The Morris residence? I'm calling for Mr. Maxwell Daney. Due to unfortunate circumstances the cocktail party this afternoon has been canceled. Will you please tell Mr. and Mrs. Morris? And also tell them there will be no wedding tomorrow..." Yes, that is correct. Please extend to them Mr. Daney's regrets and—

CHAPTER XXIV

As I approached the study, the door opened and Mrs. Daney came out, followed by Sergeant Griffiths, who was saying, "Thank you, Mrs. Daney. I deeply regret this tragic occurrence, but I am sure that you understand my position."

When she was gone, I asked Griffiths, "Did she say, 'Thank God'?"

"No, she merely expressed sorrow—but admitted that she had been strongly opposed to her son's marriage to the deceased. She denied any knowledge of the shooting and claims that she did not leave her rooms last night."

"She lied," I said. "I told you that I talked to her upstairs in the hall."

"But I remember," Griffiths said, "but I didn't mention it—not to a woman like Mrs. Daney. I may be forced to press it later. Who's next?"

"Well," I said, "there's William Darnody, the real deaf mute. It will be necessary to communicate with him by written notes. His boss, Julius Stockmaster, the famous author, appears to be still sleeping it off. You know about him and his relationship with the deceased. And you know about Miss Dixie McQueen, who came here innocently and in good faith, only to find that her host was about to marry another."

"Hearts and flowers," Griffiths said. "Would this Dixie be capable of eliminating the competition in the most basic way possible?"

"I wouldn't know. Why don't you ask her?"

"I will. Bring in Miss McQueen. I returned to the drawing room. Dixie McQueen, sitting beside Sandy, looked at me with frightened eyes. Maybe she sensed that she was next. As I moved toward her, she turned to Sandy, as if for protection, and Sandy looked a question at me. I patted Dixie's arm and said something in a low voice. Dixie rose and stood hesitantly, watching me, twirling her fingers nervously. I smiled in my most fatherly manner and escorted her out of the hall, I said soothingly. "It's nothing to worry about. Just a few questions."

"I—I don't want to stay here," She seemed close to tears.

Griffiths spent nine minutes with Dixie while I loitered outside. She emerged, looking pale and bewildered, followed by Griffiths, who said to me, "Would you please bring Miss Hollis?"

I knew what he was after; Dixie had spent the night with Sandy and he wanted to compare stories.

"Okay," I took Dixie's arm and guided her back to the drawing room. She gazed straight ahead and said nothing. At the archway I stopped, let her cross the big room by herself and nodded a finger at Sandy. She creaked but did not obey until Dixie was seated on the divan beside her. Then she leaned close, said something to the girl, patted her arm again, stood up and crossed the room with her free, long-legged stride. "Here we are," I said as we reached the study. "Just stick to your story."

I opened the door,

At the sight of Sandy, both Sergeant Griffiths and Corporal Leeds got to their feet. Griffiths regarded her appreciatively and displayed handsome teeth as I made the introduction. Then he pulled turned his back on her and pointed out a chair for Sandy. I left, deadpan, closed the door and waited in the hall as before.

She was in there 14 minutes. Griffiths ushered her out, still showing his teeth. "Thank you very much, Miss Hollis. We appreciate your cooperation."

"You're welcome," Sandy said.

Griffiths turned to me. "Will you please bring Mr.—he glanced at a sheet in his hand—"Darnody?"

Griffiths kept Darnody for 35 minutes, no doubt because of the need for writing questions and answers. I did not remain out in the hall all that time. I went to the kitchen once and looked in. Cecil was still on the phone and gave me a weary smile. I returned to my post, saw that the door was still closed and ambled on down the long hall to the drawing room. Sandy and Dixie McQueen were gone, but Julius Stockmaster was in the same position, snoring gently.

I regarded him thoughtfully, wondering if I should try to arouse him and prepare him as much as possible for his session with Sergeant Griffiths.

A soft voice said, "Telephone, Mr. Bennett."

I turned. Florine stood in the archway.

"Where?" I asked.

"In the library."

"Thanks, Florine."

She went away. I stubbed out my cigarette in a bronze ashtray on a low table beside the snoring Stockmaster and went into the hall. Florine had disappeared and I saw that the door to the study was still closed. I walked past the library. A white phone on a table there was off the hook. I picked up the receiver and said, "Hello."

It was Max.

How to Understand a Stepfather

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: My brother is 14. I am 18. When he was eight months old and I was two, our father was killed.

At four my mother and I met trouble. Our mother remarried. Ever since we have lived in hell. Our stepfather lets us have nice clothes and food but throws it up to us, saying we are lazy and crazy. When I come in from school, I clean the house, mop floors, cook supper and wash dishes. Mother has two children by him, one 8 years old, the other 19 months. Please tell us how to overcome the hate in our hearts for our stepfather. Mother always made us respect him—we can't in our hearts. —Troubled

Dear Helen: We hate things which we fear.

Try to see your stepfather, not as the devil who makes life hell for you and your brother, but as an ordinary mortal who, like you, is beset by fear, insecurity and a craving to be praised rather than damned, else he would not be forever recounting all he has given you both.

Next time he reminds you, express your appreciation, don't talk back. Never let him know you are hurt. Once he sees his jibes no longer sting, he'll quit. Take heart. In two short years you will be 18 and on your own!

Dear Helen: Can two people of opposite religions make a go of marriage? One of us is Jewish, the other Catholic.

We each believe in our respective religions, yet we also respect the religion of the other. Our lives are different in many ways. My boy friend works. I go to school, yet we are completely happy in each other's company. Please tell whether there is happiness or sorrow for us if we marry. —Perplexed

Dear Helen: People of different religions and tastes can make a go of marriage, provided their love is mature and their intelligence above average.

It is impossible to avoid sorrow, even in the happiest of marriages. And who would want to? Herick, the English poet, said, "Sorrow is our portion... crosses we must have; or, hereafter, woe." Merry this boy if you love him. Every great religion, yours as well as his, teaches us to accept the dangerous conditions of life by going forward without fear.

Harrison Has Difficulties Financially

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The sun was out and the floods were ebbing in Arkansas Thursday. But in Harrison, it was financially a cloudy day.

City, county and state officials announced Thursday that damage to Harrison and Boone County public facilities alone from Sunday's flood will total $350,000.

That doesn't count an estimated $10 million in private property damage.

Mayor Dene O. Hester, County Judge Ralph Hudson and Arkansas Civil Defense Director Owen Payne announced the estimate after surveys of public buildings, sewer systems, roads and bridges.

They'll present their figures to Gov. Orval E. Faubus, who has said he will request a federal grant under a law providing emergency funds for public facilities.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said Thursday the threat of serious flooding in the state from week-end rains is over. The Arkansas, White and Ouachita Rivers are out of their banks at some points and water is still rising, but predicted crests will flood only timber and pastureland.

Thursday was the third straight day of sunny skies.

In Washington, Sen. J. Fulbright, D-Ark., told the Senate that the flood at Harrison could have been prevented if proper flood-prevention works had been installed.

He said Army Engineers studied in 1958 a project on Crooked Creek to protect the area but found that, under the existing justification formula, it could not be economically justified.

"It has taken a major disaster costing several lives and millions in property damage to prove that this project was needed," Fulbright said. "Perhaps the flood will focus attention on a need to revise the outmoded criteria used in project studies."

Boone County paid its public facilities loss at $215,135. Hester said the city's damage would total at least $134,439. The city's loss included: school property, $53,064; sewer lines and disposal system, $35,350; debris clearance, $35,000; water pollution and distribution system, $8,800; streets, bridges and levees $8,200; storm sewer system, $5,750; city hall and fire station, $4,775; post control, $3,500. County damage: roads $158,400; one swinging bridge and 55 low water, creek slabs, $77,000; debris clearance, $10,000; court house building and records, $6,710; coun-

Late Show Sat. at Saenger; Also Sun. and Mon. Feature

"The 3 Worlds of Gulliver" Stars Jo Morrow, June Thorburn and Kerwin Mathews as Gulliver. Go with Gulliver to astounding lands no explorer has ever seen in a world as different as night and day.

Tues. Wed. Thurs. at Saenger

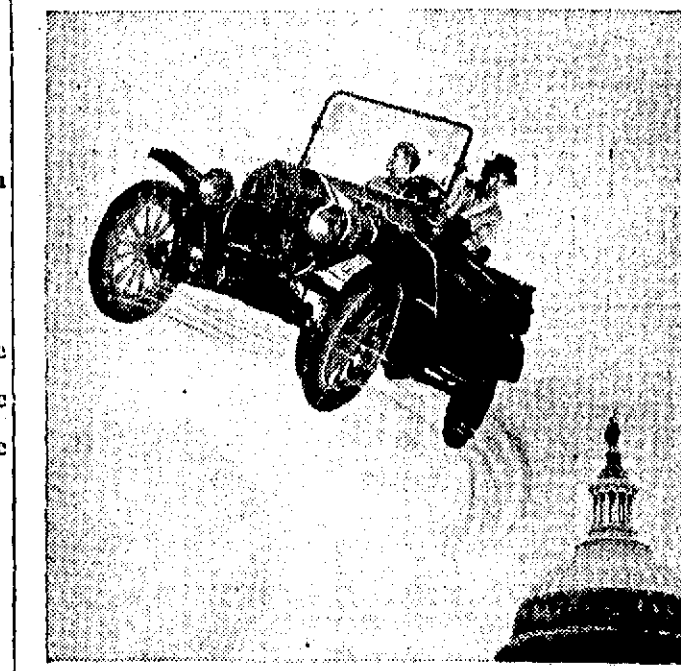

"Sanctuary" stars Lee Remick, Yves Montand and Bradford Dillman in William Faulkner's story of Temple Drake and her Creole lover, Candy and the woman who laid down her life to save them all.

May 21 & 22 at Saenger

"All Hands On Deck" Stars Pat Boone, Buddy Hackett, Dennis O'Keefe and Barbara Eden in the gayest, glib & gal get together ever! Hear Pat sing 4 Hit Parado songs.

Coming - Friday, May 26

"The Absent-Minded Professor" stars Fred MacMurray, Nancy Olson, Keenan Wynn and Tommy Kirk with Ed Wynn as the Fire Chief. This is Walt Disney's zaniest comedy in years and breaks the laugh barrier. Don't miss the car that flies and a hundred other side-splitting scenes.

State to Receive Mexican Laborers

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Blytheville - Forrest City - West Memphis area will receive the state's largest initial allotment of Mexican farm laborers this year, J. L. Bland, Arkansas Employment Security Division director, said Wednesday. Of the state's immediate quota of 5,395 braceros, 3,442 are allocated to the Blytheville-Forrest City-West Memphis area. Bland said the Mexican workers will be available May 15. Farmers using braceros to supplement their work force must file an order with a statement of the number of domestic laborers. Other initial allocations include 1,800 for the Jonesboro-Newport-Harola area and 652 for the Helena area. Bland said the 1961 quota is well below the record 12,585 Mexicans who worked in Arkansas last year.

TIZZY

By Kate Ozann

"It's too bad Henry's gardening methods aren't used nationally—there sure wouldn't be any food problem!"

SWEETIE PIE

By Nadine Seltzer

"We'd better retreat! They're bringing in their heavy equipment!"

SIDE GLANCES

By Galbreith

"Simply take a wrench and unscrew the dinkus that holds the pipe in place... if your little boy is like mine, you'll find a pencil down your sink drain!"

By Dick Cavalli

I should think you'd be happy that I'd want to celebrate our anniversary every year.

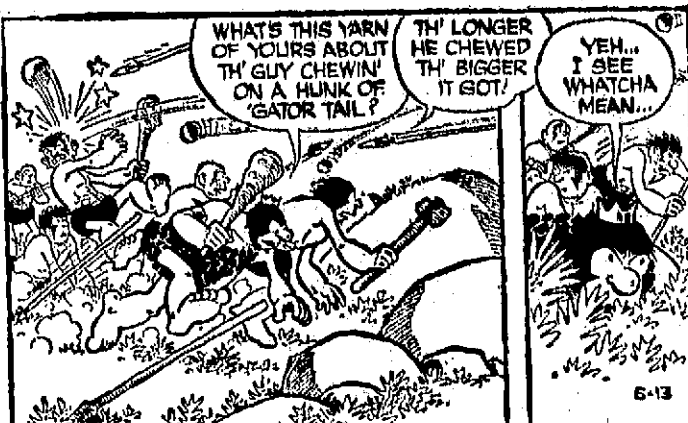

You can help me by taking over as president. Of course, I want you to marry me first!

TIZZ

By Kate Ozann

"Okay if I take the phone off the hook while I'm taking my bath!"

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

By Merrill Blosser

THE STORY OF MARTHA WAYNE

WILLY, I idolized your father. Your loss is mine and everyone's. Is there anything I can do?

Yes! Daddy left his empire to me... lock, stock and barrel! Well, most of the stock, anyway!

You can help me by taking over as president. Of course, I want you to marry me first!

STRENGTHEN THROUGH

FAMILY TIES

Her Day

— Mother's Day. The world voted a day in her honor and Heaven was glad.

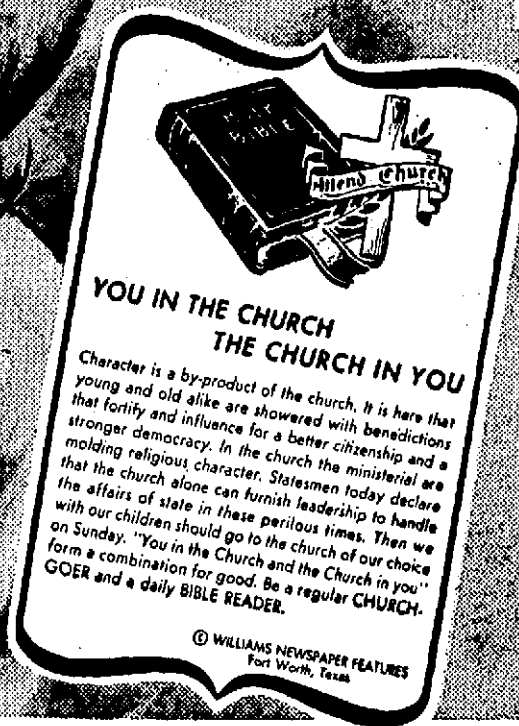

It is a meager tribute that we should pause once a year... the second Sunday in May... to do her honor. She gave you life and love but what have you given her? Life will not change her love nor will death conquer it. She is the soaring cloud of radiant rapture that lifts us to new attempts and the strength we need to see us through.

Her God would be pleased to see her in church this Mother's Day... won't you take her to God's House?

IF A
